project spotlight

Dr. Nicola Gates, Psychologist

What was your experience doing business with Ranbuild?

I really appreciated their openness and enthusiasm to take on our project and for their support throughout the entire build process. They were sceptical about the colour initially but were happy to follow my lead and supported my decisions.

Why did you choose a Ranbuild shed for your property?

I have always liked the old, corrugated sheds as they are quintessential country, but also because of the colour so it was an aesthetic decision. It was also an ideological one, as corrugated metal is also very eco-friendly and can be recycled which was important. Choice was practical – COLORBOND® is great in the fire prone countryside and can be quickly and economically assembled.

What is your favourite feature?

I simply love the colour Monument® and the way the walls reflect light and shadow, so it changes colour and blends perfectly in the landscape. I also love having the clerestory windows. The elevation to the high windows makes the small house appear so much bigger and provide a view of the sky and the louvres allow ventilation.

How did you go about the design process?

We had a very strong sense of the design we wanted and were limited to certain size specifications from council, so the process was actually pretty straight forward. I spent time playing with drawings and when we agreed on the configuration and design ideas, we handed our concept drawings to an architect to put into appropriate form and then we talked it through with Ranbuild. Ranbuild converted the architectural drawings to engineering plans and construction instructions- 5 pages became over 100.

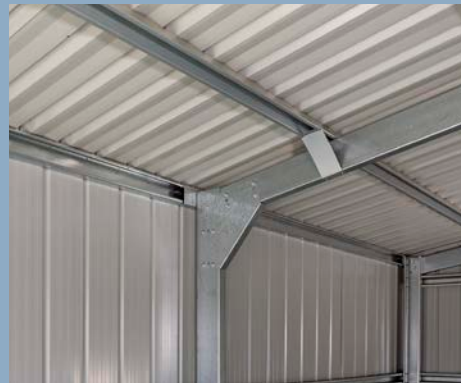

Would you recommend Ranbuild?

People advised us not to design, project manage and build but the teams at Ranbuild made the whole thing very straightforward and the finished project is just what I envisaged- so yes, they took the dream and made it real.

the process

Ok, you have your shed quote and you would like to proceed, what happens now?

You may need a site inspection to confirm the shed, garage or building is suitable for your preferred site, terrain and aspect. Please review and discuss the final detailed inclusions of your quote with your Ranbuild dealer just to make sure everything is agreed.

Once final approval and agreement is reached, you pay your deposit to secure your order and draw up the engineering plans for your shed.

Generally this is a speedy process, only taking approximately 48 hours to produce the plans if there are no modifications. The engineering plans will also include a comprehensive BOM (Bill of Materials) and elevation plans.

These plans then go to Council for approval, either you or your dealer can do this. Once these plans are approved, the next payment is required to commence the manufacture of your shed. Your delivery date will be confirmed by the dealer.

The final kit payment is due approximately one week prior to the delivery on site. Delivery of your shed will not be possible without this payment.

All payments can be made by EFT or direct deposit to the dealer, they will provide you with their bank details and preferred method of payment.

The delivery can be direct to the building site and all materials are crated, shrink wrapped and delivered. The BOM supplied with your engineering plans serves as a manifest for checking that all the components have been delivered.
